

فحصتي ملتي

Multaka

With these Hands
Crafting a shared humanity

Trail Map

Follow this trail to explore crafts from around the world through storytelling

Please keep or return this leaflet for others to use

Objects tell human stories

*They speak
of hardship
and dignity,
of celebration
and resistance*

This trail invites you to think how crafted objects hold deeper meanings beyond their uses. They help shape and strengthen our communities, cultural identities and lived experiences.

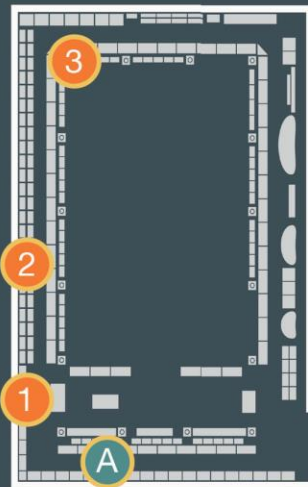

This logo will help you spot the objects in this trail.

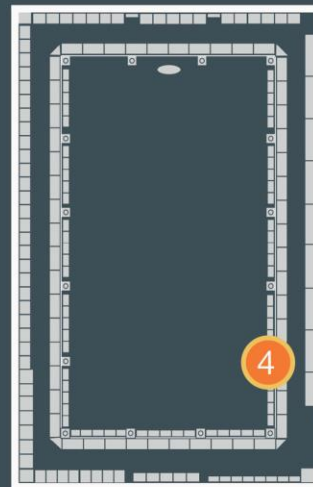

Go up to the first floor to start the trail. You can use the lift or the stairs.

First Floor

Second Floor

Ground Floor

1 Stitching

2 Aleppo Soap

3 Trade Beads

A You can learn more about these masks at trail stop 5.

4 War Rug

5 Masks and Manga

6 Harvest

7 Prayer Beads

8 Seal Replicas

9 Embroidery

B This sculpture has a similar use to the harvest objects at trail stop 6, it is used to promote a healthy crop.

We hope you enjoyed this trail. End your journey by sharing your thoughts at our feedback station.

'With these Hands' has been co-curated by MultakaOxford and the Pitt Rivers' staff team.

The team collaborated to explore the museum's collections and share the deep meanings that crafted objects can hold for people and communities around the world.

'Multaka' means meeting point in Arabic.

MultakaOxford is a project that sits in the Pitt Rivers Museum and History of Science Museum in Oxford.

The project brings people and communities together through sharing experiences, knowledge and skills, creating platforms for intercultural dialogue in the museums and beyond.

Learn more about MultakaOxford

Objects tell human stories

*They speak
of hardship
and dignity,
of celebration
and resistance*

